Goodfellow officer named AETC FM Company Grade Officer of Quarter

BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS LUIS LOZA GUTIERREZ

EDITOR

Second Lt. Ross Davis, with the 17th Comptroller Squadron, was recently recognized by Air Education and Training Command as the Financial Management Company Grade Officer of the Quarter.

"I never thought I would have a chance to win a major command-level award as a second lieutenant," said the surprised, 24-year-old officer from Baton Rouge, La.

The AETC Company Grade Officer of the Quarter award recognizes the outstanding achievements and accomplishments of a company grade officer's job performance, including contributions to mission effectiveness, leadership and mentorship in the workplace and professional and career development and improvement. To a lesser degree, nominations also emphasize contributions, participation and activities outside of job duties.

Lt. Davis met the criteria stated above thanks to his work during both on- and off-duty hours. Some of his most notable on-duty achievements have been leading Goodfellow from last to first place in AETC for delinquent Government Travel Card cases resolved, the creation of a new electronic customer survey form and tracker used to analyze and improve service in his unit and outstanding service to more than 3,000 personnel served with an average wait time of under 2 minutes.

Some of Lt. Davis' most notable off-duty accomplishments are his role as the treasurer of the Company Grade Officer's Council and his display of volunteerism in events like Operation Kids.

Lt. Davis is also an active participant in base intramural sports programs. He has been a starter for both his squadron's volleyball team and the base soccer team and is currently a member of the 17th Mission Support Group's flag football team, the Junk Yard Doggs.

Lt. Davis' recent award has also brought praise from his new squadron commander, Maj. Stephen Cristofori.

"In my short time as comptroller squadron commander, Lt. Davis has been an out-front, take-charge leader. When I read the write up and the lieutenant's numerous accomplishments, I knew it would only be a matter of time before he was named AETC/FM's CGO of the Quarter," said Maj. Cristofori.

Although the lieutenant's recent award was an individual one, he was quick to give credit to the members of his unit.

"My co-workers felt great because they realize they are the reason I was able to win the award," Lt. Davis said. "Since this was a MAJCOM-level award in our career field, my squadron played a huge role in my success. They all congratulated me and made me feel proud to be representing them," said the lieutenant.

Lt. Davis has won other awards in his less than two years of service, the most notable of which are 17 CPTS CGO of the year for 2005, 17 CPTS CGO of quarter for third quarter of 2005, 17 CPTS CGO of the quarter for the second quarter of 2006 and 17th Training Wing Staff CGO of the quarter for the second quarter of 2006.

Commissioning beyond borders

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Any officer can say that his or her commissioning ceremony was a special moment. Some might even describe it as a personal experience because family members were involved, but how many can claim they were delivered the oath of office by their father in Baghdad through a video teleconference?

2nd Lt. Marie Bachran can.

On Monday morning, then-Cadet Bachran and her guests were escorted into the Piper Auditorium in a Sensitive Compartmented Information Facility. The atmosphere was tense and anxious; with a nine-hour time difference and any number of possible technical complications, many things could have gone wrong. The family looked weary as everyone ran on an hour of sleep due to a deer-and-vehicle incident early that morning. However, faces lit up as the operator in Baghdad connected to Army Lt. Col. John Trankovich and his image appeared on the screen next to the one reflecting his family's smiles.

The ceremony officially began at 8:30 a.m. when Col. Brian Brown, Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps Detachment 847 commander and Professor of Aerospace Science at Angelo State University, gave the opening remarks. He pointed out that this commissioning over video teleconference was "a first in the history of Det 847 and a first in the history of Goodfellow."

As Col. Trankovich started to recite the oath of office, the commissionee's voice began to waver with emotion while she repeated his words. The mood was intense and on-lookers began to tear up as well.

This isn't Col. Trankovich's first commissioning; as a former ROTC instructor, he has plenty of experience. However, as he finished the oath with

"Congratulations lieutenant" just like he's always done, he couldn't help but take a second look.

"I looked closer, past the uniform, and saw my daughter - the infant born the night I made my first solo flight in a helicopter, helped teach how to walk, read, ride a bike, and drive and get through high school, dating and into a great marriage - and there she was," he said.

"Marie was pinning on the very gold bars I wore as a second lieutenant," the colonel said. "She earned them." Col. Trankovich, described by his first-born daughter as a "very, very quiet, introverted man," was overcome with emotion. "I tried hard not to get all teary-eyed, and almost did it," he explained. "I

SECAF letter asks Airmen to become communicators

SAN ANTONIO -- In the latest Letter to Airmen, Secretary of the Air Force Michael W. Wynne recognizes the importance of every Airman communicating the Air Force story, especially the contribution the Air Force makes to the nation's security.

The secretary said that success of an enhanced strategic communication program will focus on every Airman.

"The American public looks up to you as a model of integrity, and by sharing your experiences you are the best spokesmen for our Air Force," Secretary Wynne wrote.

As part of the new program, a booklet about "The Air Force Story" will provide Airmen with information to discuss with family, friends and the public. Deployed Airmen will receive an "Airman's Card" which will provide guidance on how to communicate their story and to be honest, candid and to stay within their area of expertise.

In addition, a new advertising campaign will feature outstanding Airmen describing their contributions to the nation's defense.

"One person's story carries the hopes and dreams of a new generation of Airmen and confirms the public's belief that we serve on their behalf," he wrote.

This Letter to Airmen and other senior leader viewpoints can be found in the Library section of Air Force Link. (Article courtesy of Air Force Print News.)

Changes to Family Housing Recycling

BY LYNDAL FISHER

RECYCLING PROGRAM MANAGER

Changes to the Goodfellow recycling program took effect Wednesday.

Curbside collection of recyclable materials at Lanham Housing and Lake Nasworthy Housing and the recreational camp will no longer be provided. The level of participation has not been sufficient to justify the cost of continuing the service. Residents will be instructed later regarding how to turn in their recycle containers.

Residents of housing areas are encouraged to continue recycling by using the 24-hour recycling drop-off center located on the north end of the base on Ft. Lancaster Ave, at Bldg. 516. You can go by here anytime and drop off your recyclables in the marked collection points.

There are glass and dumpsters and drop chutes for newspaper (including advertising inserts), mixed office paper, magazines and catalogs, aluminum cans, metal cans, telephone books and plastic bottles.

Cardboard boxes should be broken down, remove tops from the plastic bottles and rinse the cans and bottles first. Please do not leave anything on the ground.

The moving box program will continue for military personnel who are doing Do-It-Yourself moves. If you are new to Goodfellow and have moving boxes available, the recycling center will accept them. These boxes are provided to other personnel needing to pack items for a move. All trash and packing materials should be removed and boxes should be broken down flat. Packing materials can be consolidated into a box. Boxes can be dropped off and picked-up at the recycling center.

Personnel needing boxes should call ahead to the Recycling Center at 654-3375 to determine availability.

If you have any questions about recycling, please call at 654-3451.

Base Track and Field officially opens

(Left to right) Col. Scott Bethel, 17th Training Wing commander, and Col. Stephen Czerwinski, 17th Mission Support Group commander, take part in a ribbon cutting ceremony for the base track and field Friday. According to Bart Jennings, 17th Civil Engineer Squadron mechanical engineer for the contracts element, the project construction cost was approximately $786,000 and was funded through the latest round of Goodfellow's Energy Savings Performance Contract. In the ESPC, construction costs are paid for by the energy savings produced. The savings in irrigation and maintenance were pooled together with several other energy saving projects and will pay for all of the construction costs, design, and financing over the next 18 years. Construction for the project was done by Siemens Building Technologies and took approximately 6 months to complete.

USAF Band Of the West Concert Band gives classic performance

The United States Air Force Band of the West Concert Band performed Aug. 11 at San Angelo City Auditorium.

"I must say, this is the best audience we've had all tour," said Maj. Dean Zarbinski, USAF Band of the West Concert Band commander and conductor, referring to the more than 1,400 servicemembers and civilians in attendance at the performance.

The event's musical program included classical music selections such as "Solfaggiato" by German composer Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, adapted by Argentine composer Jorge Calandrelli.

The evening reached a different tone when the concert band began to play a medley of "Ray Charles" music, which featured Staff Sgt. Rebecca Packard, concert band vocalist, singing popular songs like "Hit the Road, Jack" and "Georgia on my Mind."

The evening concluded with the concert band playing the service songs for each of the military branches.

The musical group travels over 125,000 miles annually and provides more than 500 performances to military and civilian audiences throughout Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Louisiana. (Photos by Airman 1st Class Kamaile Chan. Story and graphics by Airman 1st Class Luis Loza Gutierrez.)

was one proud dad and my eyes started to water, but then she surprised me by saluting me. That straightened me out."

Lt. Bachran wasn't able to hold out like her father, and her eyes watered with tears of joy as her family pinned gold bars to her shoulders. She knew this moment would have a huge impact on her father.

"This is a really cool thing for my dad. He's really, really excited," she said the evening before her commissioning. "This is a big moment for him because I'm kind of following in his footsteps, but I'm doing it my own way," she continued. Lt. Bachran said her father always wanted her to do things the military way, and for a long time, she didn't want to. "But one day I thought, 'I'll give it a try,'" she said.

Lt. Bachran didn't always have ambitions to be in the military.

"Marie's decision to serve in the Air Force came as a bit of a surprise," described Col. Trankovich. "While we were in South Carolina and she was in high school, she never wanted anything to do with the military, to include any high school JROTC." However, an assignment in high school changed her whole perspective. The paper was about her personal hero, and she chose her father. Lt. Bachran explained that after she wrote about his experiences and sacrifices, she was inspired to make the decision to serve.

When her father was stationed in the United Arab Emirates in 2002, she had to make a decision: either go to college or go overseas with her family. Lt. Bachran chose school. With her grandmother in Midland, she narrowed her prospects to Texas Tech or Angelo State University. Although she was offered both Army and Air Force ROTC scholarships, she decided on ASU, which only hosts Air Force ROTC, because she loves the school's attitude.

"ASU had more for me," she explained, referring to the program's flexibility and willingness to accommodate a demanding nursing curriculum. However, her view of military service is unbiased. "Serving your country, no matter what branch you're in - Army, Air Force, Marine Corps or Navy - it's all the same. I just wanted to serve."

Marie Bachran has come a long way to become an Air Force officer. She may be freshly commissioned, but she is not new to the military way-of-life. She and her husband 2nd Lt. Stephen Bachran, both Army brats, feel they are ready for their military careers.

"It's a lifestyle we understand and are prepared for," she said. In September, the newly commissioned lieutenant will attend an intensive 10-week nursing course at Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. "I hope to be selected for the critical care unit; my passion is ER," Lt. Bachran said. "I was a Discovery Channel kid and always loved watching people get better fast, getting help fast."

What does this mean? It means that our local Household Good and Unaccompanied Baggage agents are fully saturated for up to three weeks out for pickup or delivery of personal property.

If you receive orders and intend to have the government ship your items, it's imperative that you immediately go to TMO with those orders. For those persons who receive orders at the last minute, we suggest you give someone a power of attorney to release your items for later shipment.

Some MTLs are taking care of their students by storing items until they can be shipped. As a last resort, TMO is taking small unaccompanied baggage into the freight warehouse for later shipment.

Community Center and Club Merge

By Suzanne Y. Torres
Director, Marketing & Advertising
17th Services Division

It's bold, different and definitely new! It's the Goodfellow Event Center! A place where students and permanent party can socialize, dine, surf the net, book a flight or just enjoy a fresh cup of coffee. Based on customer input and activity use, the 17th Services Division is going to merge the Community Center and the Club into an Event Center located in the current Club building.

The merger allows Club and Community Center programs to complement each other while providing significant cash savings to Goodfellow AFB. The savings will help all Services programs better meet the needs of their customers division wide.

The merger does not mean the Club and Club membership will go away. In fact, members will see their dues reduced while continuing to receive membership through discounts in other Services activities and exclusive club member only programs available in the Event Center.

The Community Center retains all of their current programming and gains a cyber café where patrons can surf the net and enjoy an espresso. In addition, the Event Center special function space will be smaller but is available for commander's calls, change of commands, birthday parties and small catered Events. The merger also allows the Event Center to offer the customer requested NFL Sunday Ticket this fall.

Both the Club and Community Center appreciate your patronage and look forward to seeing all in the new Event Center. Look for the Goodfellow Event Center opening on 1 Oct 06. If you have any questions about the Event Center, please contact Services Marketing and Advertising Department at 654-3336.

Travel Restrictions

In light of recent disrupted terrorist activities in the United Kingdom, the Transportation Security Administration imposed the following restrictions/directions:

◆ All travelers should check in at least two hours prior to flight departure. Failure to do so could result in personnel not being allowed to board the flight

◆ All travelers must now remove their shoes when passing through the metal detector

◆ Liquids (hair spray, hair gels, sun tan lotion, beverages, etc.) are no longer permitted in carry-on bags with the following exceptions: liquid prescription medicine is permitted but must be in traveler's name; people traveling with infants may carry formula, breast milk, and juice. Sealed containers with liquids are still currently permitted in checked baggage.

◆ Travelers should be patient and flexible as TSA personnel react to these and future restrictions.

Our Mistake

In last issue's announcement of the Friendship Golf Tournament winners, we mistakenly switched the names of the 2nd and 3rd Place winners.

The Monitor staff apologizes for the confusion.

Beerfest

Saturday - FREE SHOW!

Erik Stolhanske and Paul Soter star in this R-rated movie. When American brothers Todd and Jan Wolfhouse are sent to Germany on a mission to spread their grandfather's ashes at Oktoberfest, they stumble upon the super-secret Beerfest - the Olympics of beer drinking. At Beerfest, the brothers receive a less than warm welcome from their German cousins, who shun Todd and Jan, slander their heritage, and worst of all, drink them under the table.

Little Man

Sunday at 5 p.m.

Shawn and Marlon Wayans star in this movie rated PG-13. Darryl Edwards is so eager to become a father that he mistakes a short, baby-faced thief on the lam for an abandoned toddler. He and his wife take the "baby" into their home while the thief's partner tries to help him recover a stolen diamond.

You, Me and Dupree

Sunday and Thursday

Owen Wilson stars in this movie rated PG-13. Carl and Molly Peterson are just starting their new life together--complete with a cute house, boring neighbors, stable jobs and the routines of newlywed existence. There's just one unfortunate hitch in their perfectly constructed new world: Randy Dupree, Carl's oldest friend and perpetual bachelor, has found himself with nowhere to go after being fired.

Little Goodfellow Olympians

Children, parents, volunteers and Child Development Center staff members take part in the carrying-of-the-torch parade around the playground next to the CDC to kick-off the Little Olympics festivities.

The 17th Services Division's Child Development Center hosted the 3rd Annual CDC Little Olympics Aug. 11.

The purpose of the event was to promote parent participation and physical fitness through fun-filled activities for the children, said Cynthia Padilla, CDC director.

"I think the event was a big success. Parents, children and the staff looked like they really enjoyed themselves out there," said Marilyn Stewart, CDC assistant director.

Approximately 150 people attended the hour long event, which began with a carrying-of-the-torch parade around the playground next to the center.

More than 100 2-to-5-year-olds participated in the games, while those children under age 2 played the role of Little Olympic spectators under the watchful eyes and care of parents and CDC staff members.

The Little Olympics featured games such as basketball, discus throwing, bean bag tossing, walking on balance beams, tricycle racing and even a javelin throwing competition using foam tubes.

All CDC children received gold medals and certificates of participation, and each classroom received a trophy to commemorate the festivities.

The CDC hosts monthly events to promote parent participation. The center's next parent participation events are the Hispanic Heritage Month Piñata Party, scheduled for Sept. 15, and the Taste of the CDC, a culture appreciation event scheduled for Oct. 20.
